THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS, CLEARFIELD, PA. TUESDAY EVENING MARCH 23, 1920

PRESIDENT SUMMONS MINERS AND OPERATORS

ARE TO NEGOTIATE SCALE ON BASIS OF MAJORITY REPORT OF COMMISSION

AT SAME TIME LIFTS ALL FEDERAL RULES ON PRICE FIXING AND CONTROL OF PRODUCTION UNDER WAR ACT

EIGHT HOUR DAY IS TO REMAIN

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Wilson today called the miners and operators in joint conference to revise the wage schedules on the basis recommended in the majority report of the Coal Commission. At the same time the President issued an order to take effect April 1, abandoning all orders relative to government prices issued prior to March 1, when the railroads were returned to their owners. The effect of this order is to lift government distribution and to knock out all price regulations issued under the authority of the Lever Act. The White House also made public both the majority and the minority reports of the Coal Commission which adjourned recently after long hearings on the bituminous coal wage controversy.

Both the majority and the minority reports accept as a basis an average increase to tonnage workers of 25 per cent. over the wages in effect March 31, 1919, with the provision that the 14 per cent. wage increase fixed by former Fuel Administrator Garfield be eliminated April 1, when the new wage scale is to become effective and continue in effect until March 31, 1922 or for two years. As to day laborers and monthly men, except trappers and other boys, the majority report provides for an advance of $1.00 a day. Trappers and boys receiving less than men's wages an advance of 50c a day. The minority report differs on this point. White recommends an advance of $1.35 a day for the miners and 75c a day for the others.

For yardage and deadwork both reports arrive at an advance of 20 per cent.

The minority report recommends that the increase in wages shall not be met by the operators by an advance in the price of coal. The majority report does not touch on the question of prices, a position endorsed by President Wilson. The minority report agrees to retain the eight hour day for one year but recommends a reduction in hours thereafter. The miners in their original demands asked for a six hour day and a five day week but later changed it to a seven hour day.

Both agreed that the contract between the miners and operators terminate in the spring. It was pointed out that at the time of the soft coal strike that the contract terminated in the fall and the country was at a great disadvantage and a great scarcity of coal was faced as winter came on.

The majority report advocates a commission to settle technical questions such as car pushing coal to miner's family, camps, and homes, blacksmithing. White differs with the majority report. These differences were classed by President Wilson as not highly important. In addition the report recommends storage of a three months' supply of coal by July 1, of each year by the federal government, public utilities and domestic consumers. It also recommends that the Inter-State Commerce Commission raise the rates of freight on coal in the spring higher than in the winter months in an effort to minimize the coal shortage.

Wilson's action in calling miners and operators into conference so soon is because the present agreement, automatically expires April 1. Wilson warned the operators against price restraining combinations. He expressed regret that a unanimous report was not agreed upon but pointed out that the majority and minority reports of the commission concurred in many important particulars. The minority report concurred with the report of the majority as to the wages for the miners although dissenting as to the wages for the workers and in part concurred and dissented on other points, the President said. The President said he had carefully considered the desirability of continuing government price regulation of coal after April 1, but had decided against it. "until some great emergency arises." He indicated that he did not intend to confer price fixing powers on the Coal Commission.

The Anthracite Situation

NEW YORK, March 23.—The scale committee of the anthracite coal miners meeting here today decided the men will cease work April 1 unless the operators agree that any wage increase granted in the new contract shall be retroactive from that date. Representatives of the different locals in the anthracite belt declare it would be impossible to get men out to work after the present contract expires unless the operators agree to a retroactive wage increase. There was still a possibility the miners representatives said, that the joint committee will agree on the wage scale before the contract expires April 1. In that event the men will not cease work. Much will depend it was said on the outcome of the present controversy between the soft coal miners and the operators.

BRAVE OSCEOLA LAD LEADS MARINES IN THRILLING BATTLE

Mrs. Bessie Sankey, of Osceola Mills, received the following letter from W. H. McCormick, commanding officer of the 180th Co., 15th Regiment, Second Provisional Brigade, stationed at Guaymas, D. R., dated February 21, 1920. It refers to Mrs. Sankey's son, and tells of a battle in which he was slightly wounded. Great praise is given him for his coolness, bravery and marksmanship: "In reference to a fight between 7 Marines, with your son, Guy, Sergeant Malcolm J. Lane, U. S. M. C., in charge, and 100 bandits, all armed with revolvers and rifles on the 19th of February, 1920, it is my painful duty as his commanding officer to report that he has been wounded in action; not seriously, only a flesh wound in the calf of his leg. He will be unfit for duty for at least two weeks; not any more than that, so it is nothing to worry about.

"It is also a great pleasure on my part to say that your son, only eighteen years old, acted the part of a Marine and an experienced fighter in this battle, and his men have only him to thank that they are living today. They were outnumbered sixteen to one and were surrounded on all sides by well-armed men, and in a forest so thick that the sun never shines there. But he and his men fought their way out of that circle and fought their way out of the forest to a town three miles away. It was through his coolness and the way he gave his orders that they ever reached town alive. We give him credit for killing fifty and wounding many more, of one of the most dangerous bands of bandits known to exist in the southern seas today. He has made a record down here that will never be forgotten, and he is said to be one of the coolest and one of the straightest shooters in action that his company has ever possessed. W. H. MCCORMICK.

TROUTVILLE FARMER SHOT SELF EARLY YESTERDAY MORN

Lewis Lott, a farmer living near Troutville, was found in his barn yesterday morning, before breakfast, by his son, Barnett, with a self-inflicted gun-shot wound in his forehead.

At present he is unconscious and little hopes for his recovery, are entertained.

No reason for his action is given. According to reports his son went to the barn to prepare to hitch a rig to take his sister, the only daughter, to school and found his father lying on the floor of the barn, his head in a pool of blood. His son made an effort to help his father who was unwilling to be moved and protested. However he was gotten into the house and Dr. Raine, of Sykesville, sent for. In spite of everything that is being done it is thought that the unfortunate man will die.

MANY SURPRISES IN CONFERENCE APPOINTMENTS

The Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which closed its sessions at Harrisburg last evening with the announcement of ministerial appointments for the coming year, made several transfers of pastors in this section.

The only change in Clearfield was that of Rev. John C. Collins from the Eleventh Street church, to Curwensville. Rev. Collins has made a whole host of friends during his stay in Clearfield who, while regretting very much to lose him from among us, are more than pleased to learn that he is to remain such a close neighbor.

Rev. Biddle, who has made such a success of his work at Curwensville, during his sojourn there, goes to Kenova.

Rev. John P. McCurdy, who made a fine record for himself as the Karlsruhe circuit the past year, succeeds Rev. Rose at Woodland.

Rev. Rose goes from Woodland to Glen Campbell, while Rev. Harper, who was at Glen Campbell last year, has been transferred to North Bend and Hyner.

Rev. Cobb, who had the Sandy Ridge and Centre circuits last year, will be stationed at Coalport and Irona the coming year.

The complete list of appointments for the Williamsport district will be published in The Progress tomorrow.

Rev. Collins will be succeeded at Eleventh Street by Rev. M. S. Desjardine, from St. Paul's church, Danville.

NEXT CONFERENCE AT NEWBERRY

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 22.—The final day of the fifty-second session of the Central Pennsylvania Methodist conference began today with an executive meeting of the conference, announcement being made that the appointments would be made public tonight. All committees were requested to meet early in the afternoon to clear up their business.

The conference today selected Newberry, near Williamsport, as the place of next meeting.

Seven ministers were ordained as deacons and eight others as elders at the ordination services held yesterday.

Those ordained as deacons are as follows: Rev. Charles C. Catherman, Rising Spring; Rev. William R. Jones, Lumber City; Rev. Matthew S. Q. Mollott, Howard; Rev. Charles J. Switzer, Clearville; Rev. Leonard L. Owen, Lewisberry; Rev. Edward Porter, Fort Loudon; Rev. Charles H. Monroe, Cattawissa.

BOARDMAN RESIDENT COMMITTS SUICIDE BY CUTTING THROAT

Paul Legarsky a foreigner aged about 26 years, committed suicide at the boarding house of Bendel Yendrick at Boardman yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock by cutting his throat with a razor.

Legarsky had been employed by the Boardman Coal Company for the past six or eight years. He was an industrious man, of a quiet disposition and was generally respected among his associates.

He had been in poor health for some time and his rash act was attributed to that fact.

NEBRASKA BANK ROBBED

LINCOLN, Neb., March 23.—The First National Bank of Greenwood, Neb., near here, was robbed of $8,000 in Liberty Bonds and cash last night. The robbers have not been apprehended.

DUBOIS FIREMEN WILL QUIT UNLESS GIVEN EQUIPMENT

The DuBois Fire Department, as a result of the recent $500,000 fire in that city, presented the following ultimatum to Mayor Haag which was read to city council at its meeting on Monday evening last. The firemen estimate that the specified equipment will cost $35,000.

To the Honorable Mayor and City Commissioners:

Gentlemen: Supplementing our letter of the 15th inst., we desire to make formal request for the following equipment to be furnished at once.

One Tripple Combination hose and Chemical motor truck, to be placed in the Third ward.

One chemical motor truck, to be placed in Fifth ward.

One chassis to be placed under the present Fourth ward equipment.

3,000 feet of Standard fire hose.

Five dozen good quality rubber fire coats.

The above equipment to be purchased under the supervision of the Fire Chiefs and committees already appointed in conjunction with the proper city officials.

The fire alarm system to be taken up later.

The chiefs at this time wish to notify the city commissioner that unless some decisive action is taken by the city officials towards securing all of the above equipment that they will use their influence towards withdrawing the DuBois Volunteer Fire Department from active fighting service, effective 12:00 noon, April 1st, 1920.

Very truly,
DuBois Volunteer Fire Dept.

BENSON ADMITS TALE KID SIMS TOLD ON HIM

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Rear Admiral William S. Benson tacitly admitted today that it was he who gave Admiral William S. Sims the now famous admonition, "Don't let the British pull the wool over your eyes," when Sims took charge of our ships in England's waters.

Admiral Sims testifying today before the Senate investigating committee, said that Benson had so warned him and Admiral Benson, seen after Sims had testified said:

"I was so busy directing the operations of our ships at that time, that perhaps I did make such statement."

At the same time he absolutely refused to discuss the matter further. During the war Admiral Benson was chief of naval operations, directing the entire operations of the fleet.

PEOPLE FORGETTING SOLEMNITY OF THE MARRIAGE BOND

PHILADELPHIA, March 23.—(United Press).—"People seem to forget marriages are supposed to be registered in heaven. They are lax in their morals, and this is due in some measure to the world war."

So declared Judge William H. Staake in discussing the big increase in divorces here and throughout the country.

Twenty-nine hundred and six divorce suits were begun in the Philadelphia courts last year, an increase of 1,108 over the high record of the previous year. Eight years ago, in 1912, there were only 883 applicants for divorce. In January of this year 346 cases were begun, a record, which, if it sustained, will put this year's total in excess of last year by several thousand.

PLEASED LARGE AUDIENCE

John B. Ratto, the "biggest little" single entertainer to hit this section in a long time, pleased and delighted a large audience at the Clearfield High School Auditorium last evening. His stuff was "peppy," purposeful and packed a punch in every feature.

HENRY MORGENTHAU NEW AMBASSADOR TO OLD MEXICO

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Wilson has chosen a new ambassador to Mexico and Henry Morgenthau, of New York is his appointee.

The announcement that the President had selected a new envoy was made at the White House today but there was no intimation as to the identity of the man. Mr. Morgenthau's name probably will be announced officially tomorrow, and will be sent to the senate for confirmation some time this week.

It is believed that the senate will not confirm the appointment of Mr. Morgenthau until the return to Washington of Senator Fall of New Mexico, chairman of the senate sub-committee which has been investigating the Mexican situation.

In case the appointment is confirmed by the senate, Mr. Morgenthau may be expected to depart for Mexico City, where he has more than a year the diplomatic duties of the American government have been handled through George Sumner, of the American embassy. Henry P. Fletcher, who resigned several weeks ago as American ambassador to Mexico, has not been in the Mexican capital since February, 1919. Mr. Fletcher gave up his post shortly after the arrest and confinement of W. O. Jenkins, American consular agent at Pueblo. Mr. Fletcher held that he could no longer remain in the diplomatic service while the President's Mexican policy was unchanged.

STATE ROAD RIGHT OF WAY RAPIDLY BEING SECURED

A. C. Lansberry, the Bigler business man, who, out of a spirit of progressive citizenship took upon himself the duty of securing the right of way for the new state road between Woodland and Elm Hill, at the request of the County Commissioners, was in town yesterday and stated that he was progressing finely in his work and would have his task completed in plenty of time for the beginning of construction as soon as the weather permitted.

Mr. Lansberry is of the opinion that the road should not only skirt the Albert hill but should follow the Pennsylvania railroad clear around to the crossing near the Woodland hotel and thus eliminate the hill just after you cross the railroad and the rough piece of road to the western trough at the foot of Albert's hill.

PETITION COURT TO CHANGE VOTING PLACE IN GIRARD TOWNSHIP

A petition filed at the Prothonotary's office yesterday morning contained the names of sixty electors of Girard township and asks the court to change the polling place in that township. At the present time the voting place for the township is located at the residence of Paul Smith on the Leconte's Mills-Odesa road. Not over twenty voters reside in close proximity thereto and the remainder of the electorate of the township is compelled to travel considerable distances in order to vote.

The petitioners ask that the polling place be located at Surveyor where 65 of the voters of the township reside with 60 more of the districts total of 250 living in the adjoining village of Bald Hill. This change would serve 94 per cent. of the voters to much better advantage than under the present plan. The petitioners also think it might be well to have two voting places in the township, but also puts that matter up to the court for decision. The petition is handled by Chase & Chase.

W. J. Lanich, one of Huston township's progressive Supervisors, attended the county convention at the Court House today.

Have Same Speech.

The old Gaelic or Celtic languages of the people of Scotland and Ireland are still spoken in place of English in the south and west of Scotland, in parts of Wales and other places, but the great majority of the people of both Scotland and Ireland speak English. They have their variations of speech due to brogue or dialect, just as different sections of England and America have, but in all essentials their language is ours.

TAXES IN GERMANY HEAVY

Individuals Are Beginning to Feel That Country Really Suffered Defeat in the War.

The individual German has not begun to feel the peace terms, financially. During the war the Germans have been loading their money to the government. This year they have begun to give it.

There is an estate tax graduated as to size and as to relationship. It imposes the heaviest tax on the largest inheritance from the most distant relative.

A peculiar feature of this law, illustrating its severity, is a provision that in no case may the tax exceed the amount of the inheritance taxed. No mean cousin can leave "spite money" which would compel the recipient to pay more than he got, anyhow.

An income tax ranges to about 70 per cent as the income grows.

There is a profits tax and a heavy tax on wealth increases during the war—to get the profiteers—the usual taxes for revenue, heavier than ever, and a capital levy is being considered. With food, coal and clothing short, they are bound to add to the discontent. Agitators will make the most of the crisis.

But Germany has weathered two crises as serious: In the most difficult months just after the surrender a year ago; and the peace conference period, when she woke up, as loser, to the terms.

Sadly Incomplete.

A deed dated March 15, 1807, recently recorded on Long Island, conveys "the Valentine farm on the highway leading from Jamaica to Great Plains on the Jericho turnpike, thence to the highway leading from Little Plains to Rocky Hill, including the buildings, orchards, gardens, meadows, common, seedlings, trees, woods, paths, water and water courses," but gives no other description of the property or any indication of its size, and nobody knows what it is.

Getting an Early Start.

"Why won't you marry me?" "Because I don't love you." "Why need that matter? We'd simply have a five-year start on half the people in our set."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Owl Valuable to the Farm.
Do you know a monkeyface owl when you see one? Perhaps you know it as the barn owl. Anyhow, if you see one hanging around don't kill it. It's worth six or eight cats to you on the farm or suburban place, according to the state biologist of Washington.

Benefit in Wearing Glasses.
Wearing glasses does not weaken the eyes. This is a common mistake because the eye gives up straining and reveals the full necessity for glasses. Often eyes become so strained by the rest given that after a time the glasses are no longer needed.

NOTHING that we could say would so thoroughly convince you of the value of Chamberlain's Tablets as a personal trial. The "rent hog" is everywhere present a withering blight on the prosperity of any community, taking all the joy out of living, and making life a hardship for many.

Mr. Hoover again declares that he does not desire to become a candidate for President. He has evidently inspected the vineyard and found it hanging full of "sour grapes."

Clearfield's loss is most assuredly Curwensville's gain in the person of Dr. John C. Collins to the Methodist church of that place. Dr. Collins has won a host of friends in Clearfield through his ability as a pastor, an orator and a substantial citizen. He fits into the spiritual life of our sister city in an excellent manner and Curwensville people will find him a valuable asset to their citizenry.

Politicians will have a new factor to reckon with in the near future. Women in politics are certain to inject wholesome ideas into government. Already the women are taking a great deal of interest in politics and when the time comes that they are granted a voice in party affairs and local and state government they are going to shoulder their new responsibility just as they have shouldered other responsibilities in the past. The beautiful part of it is that they have always put through whatever project they got behind. Women in politics will be a force that will bring reforms so quick that results will be staggering.

The majority report filed by the Coal Commission makes allowances to mine workers which most certainly meet them more than half way in their demands and which are wholly acceptable to the rank and file of honest toilers who dig and place the black diamonds on the cars. The minority member of the Coal Commission had his hands tied—bound by the irrevocable demands made by Lewis, et al. He could not join in the recommendations of the other members of the commission—and save his face. The miners will hardly refuse to accept the report of the majority on the commission when the allowances made are so far reaching and the possibility of a summer tie-up looms large if an industrial battle must be fought.

IT IS DIFFERENT MR. McADOO

Mr. McAdoo out of the cabinet and relieved from the dictatorship of railroads, sees things in a different light. He no longer accedes to the system of war taxation of big business in times of peace, as his recent advice to Washington signifies. He criticizes the system of taxation as follows:

"The immediate burden of taxation is too great. It is having injurious effect on business. It is a contributing factor of large proportions in the high cost of living. Its inevitable tendency is to stifle new enterprise and to throttle initiative. It is both unscientific and inequitable. In view of the approaching decline in our export trade with the inevitable reduction in the volume of business in the country, it will become doubly important to revise and to reduce taxation in order that business may not have to carry an unnecessary tax burden throughout this period of readjustment.

Congress has been told the same story many times, even during Mr. McAdoo's term of office as secretary of the treasury, but the pressure continued and high prices prevailed, and will continue as long as the manufacturers are compelled to give up so much of their profits, and this means that the consumer pays the taxes in the high price of what he buys, but he pays them, nevertheless, whatever the price of commodities. The new congress is doing its best to lop off a billion from the estimates submitted.

Excess profits tax boosts prices and costs to the consumer, but they are also a leveler for the producer.

DON'T NEGLECT THE LITTLE ONE

A snuffling, sneezing, coughing child certainly is a reflection upon the parents. To permit a child to suffer from a cold is more than negligence; it is cruel. A cold that hangs on weakens the system and can easily turn into something serious. Mrs. J. S. Pison, 376 E. 158 St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I can't speak too highly of Foley's Honey and Tar. When my little girl has a cold I give her Foley's Honey and Tar and that stops her coughing in a little while. Children like it. It contains no opiates. Sold everywhere."

When Constance Talmadge comes to the Driggs theatre Wednesday in "Who Cares?" in which she is presented by Lewis J. Selznick, patrons of the screen will have the opportunity of seeing the best Constance Talmadge picture that has yet appeared.

She is seen in the role of Joan, young, happy and carefree, living alone with her grandparents, who have both forgotten the word "youth." In a house nearby lives Martin Grey, who has come down to his country house to grieve over the death of a dearly loved father.

Joan and Martin meet and for many wonderful days they laugh and play together. Then one day Joan is discovered and she is ordered never to see Martin again. This is the last straw. She runs away to Martin and asks him to take her to the home of her friend Alice Palgrave, in the city. When they reach the city Alice is not there, and Martin does not know what else to do but to marry Joan. She readily consents, thinking that the best way out of all her troubles.

She has adopted "Who Cares?" for her motto and not knowing the responsibilities of married life she decides to have one wonderful time. She forgets all about the man who has made it possible for her to have such a wonderful time and becomes fast friends with Gilbert Palgrave, Alice's husband. Palgrave is a scoundrel of the worst sort.

One night at an inn Palgrave threatens Joan with a revolver. She tells him Martin is the only man she loves and she is not afraid to die. Martin saves her and they both decide to settle down and be happy.

TESSA MODISTE

By NELL ADAIR.

(Copyright 1920 Western Newspaper Union)

She moved into the little brown house by the mill, with only an old woman for company. She was a girlish little creature, with brown questioning eyes, and a tan-shante cap pulled over her waving dark locks. She wore unusually short skirts of woolen stuff and a nobby jacket of many pockets, and tramped through the woods, whistling foolishly when no one was near. She was at once the small town's enigma and annoyance. Annoying, in that she kept resolutely to herself, relieving in no way the natural curiosity, and an enigma, in that she constantly furnished surprises.

Old Doctor Worthington had finished telling of being called one night to attend the sick child of Italians in the town, and of finding the strange girl there relieving their distresses. Once the doctor's son, returning from the city, brought information that he had seen this same quiet brown-eyed girl in beautiful evening apparel, seated in a box at the theatre.

Cartersville disapproved of inconsistencies; it disapproved of mystery, so the inmate of the brown house was left to herself. Helen-Marie, an accepted town authority on social matters, shrugged disdainful shoulders. Later, when she met the girl, her whimsical face glowed as she walked at Jack Hamilton's side. Helen-Marie unreasonably resented her presence.

"Why did she come here?" she asked herself.

She questioned Jack contemptuously, concerning his new acquaintance.

Jack, who had been Helen-Marie's dominated property, flushed confusedly as he murmured his reply. He had come upon the girl on the long drive one day. It had been raining hard and he had offered to drive her home. The woman who lived with her was some sort of a relative, he explained. She called the girl "Tessa." Jack could tell no more.

Helen-Marie's resentment deepened as days passed and she found Jack enjoying more and more the strange girl's companionship. Sometimes she saw them seated on the cross bench on the bridge, smiling into each other's eyes; sometimes the two came swinging down the road from a long country walk. Helen-Marie bowed to Jack coldly. It was not his desertion alone which galled, but the humiliation of his preference. This girl! This unknown humble girl! Was Helen-Marie not the town's idol, their social leader, exhibited musician and authority on fashions? Was it not Jack Hamilton's aristocratic mother who had planned and encouraged their friendship? Who but Helen-Marie might be worthy of her son with his assured future?

The strange girl sat on the brown house veranda, when Helen-Marie passed, and then paused thoughtfully. The girl was sewing upon some lovely flimsy stuff. As Helen still hesitated, the girl held the material up with a shy smile.

"Pretty?" she asked.

"Very," Helen-Marie replied.

"You make your own clothes?"

The girl raised her brown eyes.

"I make—other people's," she answered slowly. "I am Tessa, modiste." So that was it. Helen-Marie went briskly up the walk. When dressmakers came to town, with herself rested always the decision of their capabilities. If, as usually happened, an anxious seamstress failed to find favor in her eyes, the seamstress might well prepare to seek other fields.

"I should like you to make a frock for me," said Helen.

Tessa considered, then she laughed softly.

"They tell me," she replied, "that Miss Helen-Marie Terry has always her own way. Therefore, I may as well agree."

Helen-Marie went on to see Jack's mother.

"Your son's new friend, the dressmaker, is sewing for me," she said.

When the white frock was finished, Helen-Marie regarded her own mirrored figure in a reluctant admiration.

"It is not," she said at last sharply, "at all as I should have wished. I am afraid that I will not be able to recommend you to my friends. However, —my bill?"

"There is no bill," little Tessa answered quietly. "When a garment fits to give satisfaction."

Helen-Marie placed a bill upon the table. It was a small recompense indeed. "That will at least pay for your time," she said and departed.

Jack's mother, descending from her automobile, met Helen-Marie at the brown house door.

"I must warn you," Helen instantly advised, "that the girl's work is impossible."

"I am coming," Mrs. Hamilton said slowly. "To make a friendly call at my son's request. He is going to marry—the girl—you see. It was love at first sight with them both, that day in the road. All Jack knew of her was the name she gave—Tessa Modiste."

"My dear! Can you conceive that this young creature is 'Theresa' of New York and London? You know of course, the significance of a 'Theresa' label. The girl does her own designing, and she came to this quiet place for a rest."

Mrs. Hamilton looked back over her shoulder.

"I am glad, Helen-Marie," she said, "that you never really cared."

How to Choose Calico

In choosing calico note well the appearance of the selvedge and remember that the straighter and more even the selvedge the better the quality of the calico. White calico owes its purity to bleaching powders, which have a destructive effect on the fibers of the calico.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE BRAVE FLOWERS.

"You're so brave, flowers," said the rainbow fairies. "Now and then we wonder how you can ever stay here and bloom and blossom."

"Oh, rainbow fairies," said the flowers, "we must stay here. We cannot leave it, or if we, ourselves, leave it, we must have our family come here in our places. Our cousins must come, our sisters and brothers, our little baby buds."

"You see, it is something too beautiful to leave. Can't you understand that, rainbow fairies?"

"Oh, yes, flowers, we can understand it," said the rainbow fairies, "for we wouldn't leave here for worlds. There are our relations who live in other parts of the world, who come out at times, but we're around all the time. Oh, such a glorious life as we do lead."

"Still," said the flowers, "you think that we might want to leave it, you think that a little bit."

"No," said the rainbow fairies, "we don't think that you would want to leave it perhaps, but we wonder how you can be so brave, so brave to hang on with all the rushing torrent of water."

Now the rainbow fairies and the flowers were talking. Others could never have heard them talking. They were speaking in the flower and rainbow language which is a beautiful language as you can imagine.

Beside them and over them and all about them was a great waterfall, in fact, several great waterfalls, as great as any in the world.

All the time there was a rainbow, several rainbows in fact; and you know, the rainbow fairies live in the rainbows. They live in them as we live in houses, and some live in the green part, some in the golden stripes and some in the red stripes.

There were many flowers around the rapids which were about the falls, and there was a great deal of lovely moss, and neither the flowers nor the moss seemed to mind the rushing water which ran so wildly past them and over them and about them.

But the flowers which were talking to the rainbow fairies were back of the falls, on the rocks and in the tiny crevices.

"People like to come down here, don't they?" asked the flowers.

"Yes, they're brave, too," said the rainbow fairies.

"We can understand their bravery," said the flowers. "We know how they want to come down those many, many steps, and take this trip across these little bridges and go under the falls. That is, rainbow fairies, they go back of the falls. The falls are falling way over there in front, and in the great space between the falls and the rocks over which they dash people can go."

"It is when they're on that trip, when they're all dressed up in oaks, and when they're getting very wet from all the mist and water, then it is that they see us and, too, think that we're brave."

"But oh, rainbow fairies, could we help but stay and see this glory? Could we leave when all around us are so great and mighty dashing waters, and beautiful rainbows in which you live, which join together in great half circles and then bend down to kiss the sparkling water?"

"Could we leave all that, rainbow fairies? You are here always, always because here the mist and the sunshine are chatting most of the time. And we like to see you and to watch you smile in your glorious, brilliant way."

"They may think we're brave, they may! The people say as they pass us."

"Oh, how can those little white flowers stand all that rushing water over their heads? We should think they couldn't stick on."

"Yes, they may say that, but oh, who thinks about bravery when there is great, great beauty to be seen? We're so happy. We live in a world of the most marvelous and glorious beauty. We're friends of the great waterfalls, of the sunshine, of the sparkling jewels made by the two jewels, Sun and Water. We're not only brave flowers. We're lucky flowers!"

If You Want To Be Happy.

Did you ever know a suspicious, fault-finding person who seemed really happy? Of course there is only one answer to that question. No one can be happy who looks on the world through suspicious eyes and is all the time grumbling and finding fault. And since all of you are anxious to be happy, would it not be sensible to substitute for suspicion, trust, and for fault-finding, appreciation?—Girls' Companion.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and youthful with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover when it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

COAL DUST LODGED IN MINER'S LUNGS

Tells how his cough was conquered and health restored.

"In November, 1916, I was working in a coal mine and the doctors said the coal dust had settled in my lungs. I couldn't sleep and my right side coughed so I couldn't sleep and had constant pain in my right lung and under my shoulder blades. I coughed so hard the blood would spurt out of my nose. Finally the doctors had me change climate and live outdoors, but didn't improve.

Then I came home and started on Mils Emulsion. Thank God, I did, as it did me a lot of good right from the start, loosening up the coal dust in my right lung. In a few weeks my lungs were free. I could sleep like a baby, had an excellent appetite and my cough left me entirely. I gained back 20 pounds in weight and went back to work in the mine completely restored to health."

E. H. Bunn, 14th Ave. & No. 15th St., Terra Haute, Ind.

Eat Less Meat

If Back Hurts

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

LAND QUESTION IN RUSSIA

Natural Desire of Peasants to Participate in Ownership of Soil They Till is Root of the Revolution.

Article XVII

By FRANK COMERFORD.

In talking with people about Russia, I have discovered that most people in America have only a faint, uncertain, vague idea of the country. Czar Nicholas, the last of the self-proclaimed autocrats, was monarch of 8,660,000 square miles, one-sixth of the entire land surface of the earth. The great Russian empire is spread over part of two continents, Europe and Asia. It is almost entirely confined to the cold and temperate zones.

Three seas bound it on the north—White, Barents and Kara of the Arctic; the seas of Bering, Okhotsk and Japan of the northern Pacific bound it on the east. The Baltic sea, the gulfs of Bothnia and Finland limit it on the northwest; two sinuous lines of land front separate it respectively from Sweden and Norway on the northwest, and from Prussia, Austria and Roumania on the west. On the south and east the frontier has changed frequently, according to the expansion and contraction of the empire under the pressure of political exigency and expediency. The Black sea is the principal demarcating feature on the south of European Russia. On the west side of that sea the south frontier touches the Danube for some 120 miles; on the east side of the same sea it zigzags from the Black sea to the Caspian, utilizing the river Aras for part of the distance. As the Caspian is virtually a Russian sea, Persia may be said to form the next link in the southern boundary of the Russian empire, followed by Afghanistan. On the Pamirs, Russia has since 1885 been co-terminous with British India, but the boundary then swings away north round Chinese Turkestan, and the north side of Mongolia, and since 1905 it has skirted the north of Manchuria, being separated from it by the river Amur.

The total length of the frontier line of the Russian empire by land is 2,900 miles in Europe and nearly 10,000 miles in Asia, and by sea, over 11,000 miles in Europe and between 19,000 and 20,000 miles in Asia—a frontier of 68,000 miles.

Empire's Vast Population.

The population of the empire, according to the 1915 census, was estimated at 182,182,600. According to the same census this population was distributed as follows: In European Russia, 131,796,900; in Poland, 12,125,000; in Caucasus, 13,125,000; in Siberia, 12,337,800; in the central Asian provinces, 11,125,000; Finland, 3,125,000.

Over 80 per cent of the people of Russia are peasants. The land is their problem. It means home to them—work, life. Their one dream has been to own the land. Land ownership is their definition of freedom, their idea of happiness.

The Russian peasant has been a stranger in his own country. The man who tills the soil and lives on the land and yet never owns an acre of it is a foreigner, even though his forefathers may have been native to the country for centuries. The Russians have felt this; they are simple, home-loving people. From the conversations I have had with Russians of the peasant class I believe that they have suffered more because they never had a chance to own their own homes, their own farms, than from the denial to them of political freedom. The land question is a heart question, a heart question to them.

Crime in Land Distribution. Some idea of the land crime in Russia is told in the startling figures showing the actual distribution of arable land, forests and meadows in European Russia. The following table is only one count in the indictment:

	Acres	Percent
Arable land	301,437,000	25
Meadows and pastures	155,470,000	15
Forests	452,125,000	39
Uncultivated	226,273,000	19
	1,135,305,000	100

This land in European Russia was divided among the different classes of owners as follows:

	Acres	Percent
State and Imperial family	400,015,000	35
Peasants	446,537,000	39
Private owners, towns, etc.	245,525,000	21
Unit for cultivation	66,006,000	5
	1,135,305,000	100

The condition of the peasants prior to the revolution, according to official documents, appears to be as follows: "In the 12 central governments they grow, on the average, sufficient rye for bread for only 200 days in the year, often for only 180 and 100 days."

One-quarter of the people have received allotments of only 2.9 acres per male, one-half of them less than 8.5 to 11.4 acres—the normal size of the allotment necessary to feed and maintain a family being estimated at 25 to 42 acres. Therefore the peasants were compelled to rent land from the landlords at fabulous prices. The aggregate value of the redemption and land taxes often reached 185 to 250 per cent of the normal value of the allotment, not to speak of the taxes for recruiting, the churches, roads and local administration, chiefly levied from the peasants. The peasants have sunk deeper into debt every year. The scheme was a quicksand—the harder they worked and struggled the deeper into debt they fell. Increasing arrears have driven one-fifth of the inhabitants from their houses. Every year more than half the adult males (in some districts three-quarters of the men and one-third of the women) are forced to quit their homes and wander throughout Russia in search of work. In the governments of the black earth region the state of matters is hardly better.

The phrase "class distinction" was more than rhetoric in Russia—it was part of the chains. It handicapped destiny, booted the door of opportunity. The great mass of the people, 81.6 per cent peasants; 10 per cent made up the nobility; 9 per cent the clergy; 6.8 per cent the burghers and merchants; 6.1 per cent the military; thus 147,000,000 of the Russians were peasants.

The slavery in Russia consecrated by law in 1869 was partly abolished in 1881. The Act only pretended to liberate the serfs. Even under the best landlords conditions continued to be terrible. Household servants or dependents attached to the personal service of their masters were released. They joined the town proletariat. The peasants were given allotments of arable land. These allotments were not given to the individuals, they were given over to the rural commune called the Mir, which was made responsible as a whole for the payment of allotments. It was a sort of land communism, except that the title did not pass even to the Mirs. The enormous charge against the land made them tenant serfs. The Mir was a mortgaged community. The redemption charge was not calculated on the value of the land, but was considered as payment for the loss of the compulsory labor of the serfs. The enslavement of the peasant was recognized in the Act which pretended emancipation.

Peasants Systematically Cheated.

Many proprietors of land saw to it that the allotments did not give the peasants the needed pasture lands around their homes. This craftily calculated scheme compelled the peasants to rent pasture land from the landlords at any price. The landlords held them up.

It was only as late as 1904 that the landlord was forbidden by law to inflict corporal punishment on the peasant. Even this law was warded at and the practice of treating human slaves as brutes tent tied domestic animals, continued. The peasant was a chattel and the cheapest farm fixture. There were plenty of peasants. Notwithstanding the barbaric life in Russia, the population continued to grow.

The peasants' only participation in government was in the assembly called the Mir. With its quaint customs, it is of immemorial antiquity. The assembly of the Mir consisted of all the peasant householders of the village. These elected a head man and collector of local taxes. It was the nearest Russian peasant's ever got to freedom. It was a socialism of sorrows, a touch of local self government which gave no rights; it simply provided a means of co-operating in burden bearing.

HARD AT WORK IN BELGIUM

Coal Mining and Other Industries Are Being Rapidly Put on a Normal Basis.

The Belgian coal mines are now turning out about 80 per cent of the normal production. They supply nearly all the coal needed for the Belgian industries, while some 350,000 tons of coal a month are exported to France. Then the great glass industry of the country, which before the war gave work to many thousands, is rapidly regaining its former prosperity, and only quite recently the French Ministry of reconstruction gave an order to a single Belgian firm for 2,000,000 square meters of window panes to be utilized in the devastated regions. The result of all this is that whereas, at the time of the signing of the armistice the French franc was worth 1.10 or even 1.15 francs in Belgium, it is now worth 95 centimes. Belgium, moreover, is very far from confining her efforts to France. Great Britain is already a considerable importer of Belgian goods while the United States recently placed an order in Belgium for more than 300,000,000 francs' worth of glassware.

Large-Hearted Doughboys.

The children played a large part in the American army's Christmas in France. At the artillery camp at Mailly, for example, it was a top sergeant who said, ten days or so before the day:

"Say, fellows, these poor little village kids haven't had much Christmas in their lives, have they, now? What do you say we take up a collection and see what we can do?"

The idea took in a flash. And they did so well, giving as they always gave, with both hands, that the total sum was amazing.

"Why," some one hazarded, "I reckon we could hand those little shavers pretty near anything they want, with all this wad to spend."

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

Look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning. Flush from the system the previous day's waste, your fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of inconsumable material in the form of ashes so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material which is not eliminated, forms toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy blood in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste matter and toxins from the system. It cleanses and purifies the entire alimentary tract, before putting food into the stomach. Girls and women with sallow, sunken spots, pimples or pallid complexion also those who wake up with coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headachy, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phlegmatized hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and refreshes the skin on the outside, hot water and limestone phosphate, taken on the inside, cleanses, purifies and refreshes the skin on the inside. Women who desire to keep their beauty of face and complexion should try this for a few days.

VOLUME XIV

THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS, CLEARFIELD, PA. TUESDAY EVENING MARCH 23, 1920

PRESIDENT SUMMONS MINERS AND OPERATORS

ARE TO NEGOTIATE SCALE ON BASIS OF MAJORITY REPORT OF COMMISSION

AT SAME TIME LIFTS ALL FEDERAL RULES ON PRICE-FIXING AND CONTROL OF PRODUCTION UNDER WAR ACT

EIGHT HOUR DAY IS TO REMAIN

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Wilson today called the miners and operators in joint conference to revise the wage schedules on the basis recommended in the majority report of the Coal Commission. At the same time the President issued an order to take effect April 1, abandoning all orders relative to government prices issued prior to March 1, when the railroads were returned to their owners. The effect of this order is to lift government distribution and to knock out all price regulations issued under the authority of the Lever Act. The White House also made public both the majority and the minority reports of the Coal Commission which adjourned recently after long hearings on the bituminous coal wage controversy.

Both the majority and the minority reports accept as a basis an average increase to tonnage workers of 25 per cent. over the wages in effect March 31, 1919, with the provision that the 14 per cent. wage increase fixed by former Fuel Administrator Garfield be eliminated April 1, when the new wage scale is to become effective and continue in effect until March 31, 1922 or for two years. As to day laborers and monthly men, except trappers and other boys, the majority report provides for an advance of $1.00 a day. Trappers and boys receiving less than men's wages an advance of 50c a day. The minority report differs on this point. White recommends an advance of $1.35 a day for the miners and 75c a day for the others.

For yardage and deadwork both reports arrive at an advance of 20 per cent.

The minority report recommends that the increase in wages shall not be met by the operators by an advance in the price of coal. The majority report does not touch on the question of prices, a position endorsed by President Wilson. The minority report agrees to retain the eight hour day for one year but recommends a reduction in hours thereafter. The miners in their original demands asked for a six hour day and a five day week but later changed it to a seven hour day.

Both agreed that the contract between the miners and operators terminate in the spring. It was pointed out that at the time of the soft coal strike that the contract terminated in the fall and the country was at a great disadvantage and a great scarcity of coal was faced as winter came on.

The majority report advocates a commission to settle technical questions such as car pushing coal to miner's family, camps, and homes, blacksmithing. White differs with the majority report. These differences were classed by President Wilson as not highly important. In addition the report recommends storage of a three-months' supply of coal by July 1, of each year by the federal government, public utilities and domestic consumers. It also recommends that the Inter-State Commerce Commission raise the rates of freight on coal in the spring higher than in the winter months in an effort to minimize the coal shortage.

Wilson's action in calling miners and operators into conference so soon is because the present agreement, automatically expires April 1. Wilson warned the operators against price restraining combinations. He expressed regret that a unanimous report was not agreed upon but pointed out that the majority and minority reports of the commission concurred in many important particulars. The minority report concurred with the report of the majority as to the wages for the miners although dissenting as to the wages for the workers and in part concurred and dissented on other points, the President said. The President said he had carefully considered the desirability of continuing government price regulation of coal after April 1, but had decided against it. "until some great emergency arises." He indicated that he did not intend to confer price fixing powers on the Coal Commission.

The Anthracite Situation

NEW YORK, March 23.—The scale committee of the anthracite coal miners meeting here today decided the men will cease work April 1 unless the operators agree that any wage increase granted in the new contract shall be retroactive from that date. Representatives of the different locals in the anthracite belt declare it would be impossible to get men out to work after the present contract expires unless the operators agree to a retroactive wage increase. There was still a possibility the miners representatives said, that the joint committee will agree on the wage scale before the contract expires April 1. In that event the men will not cease work. Much will depend it was said on the outcome of the present controversy between the soft coal miners and the operators.

BRAVE OSCEOLA LAD LEADS MARINES IN THRILLING BATTLE

Mrs. Bessie Sankey, of Osceola Mills, received the following letter from W. H. McCormick, commanding officer of the 180th Co., 15th Regiment, Second Provisional Brigade, stationed at Guaymas, D. R., dated February 21, 1920. It refers to Mrs. Sankey's son, and tells of a battle in which he was slightly wounded. Great praise is given him for his coolness, bravery and marksmanship: "In reference to a fight between 7 Marines, with your son, Guy, Sergeant Malcolm J. Lane, U. S. M. C., in charge, and 100 bandits, all armed with revolvers and rifles on the 19th of February, 1920, it is my painful duty as his commanding officer to report that he has been wounded in action; not seriously, only a flesh wound in the calf of his leg. He will be unfit for duty for at least two weeks; not any more than that, so it is nothing to worry about.

"It is also a great pleasure on my part to say that your son, only eighteen years old, acted the part of a Marine and an experienced fighter in this battle, and his men have only him to thank that they are living today. They were outnumbered sixteen to one and were surrounded on all sides by well-armed men, and in a forest so thick that the sun never shines there. But he and his men fought their way out of that circle and fought their way out of the forest to a town three miles away. It was through his coolness and the way he gave his orders that they ever reached town alive. We give him credit for killing fifty and wounding many more, one of the most dangerous bands of bandits known to exist in the southern seas today. He has made a record down here that will never be forgotten, and he is said to be one of the coolest and one of the straightest shooters in action that his company has ever possessed. W. H. MCCORMICK.

TROUTVILLE FARMER SHOT SELF EARLY YESTERDAY MORN

Lewis Lott, a farmer living near Troutville, was found in his barn yesterday morning, before breakfast, by his son, Barnett, with a self-inflicted gun-shot wound in his forehead.

At present he is unconscious and little hopes for his recovery, are entertained.

No reason for his action is given. According to reports his son went to the barn to prepare to hitch a rig to take his sister, the only daughter, to school and found his father lying on the floor of the barn, his head in a pool of blood. His son made an effort to help his father who was unwilling to be moved and protested. However he was gotten into the house and Dr. Raine, of Sykesville, sent for. In spite of everything that is being done it is thought that the unfortunate man will die.

MANY SURPRISES IN CONFERENCE APPOINTMENTS

The Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which closed its sessions at Harrisburg last evening with the announcement of ministerial appointments for the coming year, made several transfers of pastors in this section.

The only change in Clearfield was that of Rev. John C. Collins from the Eleventh Street church, to Curwensville. Rev. Collins has made a whole host of friends during his stay in Clearfield who, while regretting very much to lose him from among us, are more than pleased to learn that he is to remain such a close neighbor.

Rev. Biddle, who has made such a success of his work at Curwensville, during his sojourn there, goes to Kenova.

Rev. John P. McCurdy, who made a fine record for himself as the Karlsruhe circuit the past year, succeeds Rev. Rose at Woodland.

Rev. Rose goes from Woodland to Glen Campbell, while Rev. Harper, who was at Glen Campbell last year, has been transferred to North Bend and Hyner.

Rev. Cobb, who had the Sandy Ridge and Centre circuits last year, will be stationed at Coalport and Irona the coming year.

The complete list of appointments for the Williamsport district will be published in The Progress tomorrow.

Rev. Collins will be succeeded at Eleventh Street by Rev. M. S. Desjardine, from St. Paul's church, Danville.

BOARDMAN RESIDENT COMMITTS SUICIDE BY CUTTING THROAT

Paul Legarsky a foreigner aged about 26 years, committed suicide at the boarding house of Bendel Yendrick at Boardman yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock by cutting his throat with a razor.

Legarsky had been employed by the Boardman Coal Company for the past six or eight years. He was an industrious man, of a quiet disposition and was generally respected among his associates.

He had been in poor health for some time and his rash act was attributed to that fact.

DUBOIS FIREMEN WILL QUIT UNLESS GIVEN EQUIPMENT

The DuBois Fire Department, as a result of the recent $500,000 fire in that city, presented the following ultimatum to Mayor Haug which was read to city council at its meeting on Monday evening last. The firemen estimate that the specified equipment will cost $35,000.

To the Honorable Mayor and City Commissioners:

Gentlemen: Supplementing our letter of the 15th inst., we desire to make formal request for the following equipment to be furnished at once.

One Tripple Combination hose and Chemical motor truck, to be placed in the Third ward.

One chemical motor truck, to be placed in Fifth ward.

One chassis to be placed under the present Fourth ward equipment.

3,000 feet of Standard fire hose.

Five dozen good quality rubber fire coats.

The above equipment to be purchased under the supervision of the Fire Chiefs and committees already appointed in conjunction with the proper city officials.

The fire alarm system to be taken up later.

The chiefs at this time wish to notify the city commissioner that unless some decisive action is taken by the city officials towards securing all of the above equipment that they will use their influence towards withdrawing the DuBois Volunteer Fire Department from active fighting service, effective 12:00 noon, April 1st, 1920.

Very truly,
DuBois Volunteer Fire Dept.

BENSON ADMITS TALE KID SIMS TOLD ON HIM

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Rear Admiral William S. Benson tacitly admitted today that it was he who gave Admiral William S. Sims the now famous admonition, "Don't let the British pull the wool over your eyes," when Sims took charge of our ships in England's waters.

Admiral Sims testifying today before the Senate investigating committee, said that Benson had so warned him and Admiral Benson, seen after Sims had testified said:

"I was so busy directing the operations of our ships at that time, that perhaps I did make such statement."

At the same time he absolutely refused to discuss the matter further. During the war Admiral Benson was chief of naval operations, directing the entire operations of the fleet.

PEOPLE FORGETTING SOLEMNITY OF THE MARRIAGE BOND

PHILADELPHIA, March 23.—(United Press).—"People seem to forget marriages are supposed to be registered in heaven. They are lax in their morals, and this is due in some measure to the world war."

So declared Judge William H. Staake in discussing the big increase in divorces here and throughout the country.

Twenty-nine hundred and six divorce suits were begun in the Philadelphia courts last year, an increase of 1,108 over the high record of the previous year. Eight years ago, in 1912, there were only 883 applicants for divorce. In January of this year 346 cases were begun, a record, which, if it sustained, will put this year's total in excess of last year by several thousand.

PLEASED LARGE AUDIENCE

John B. Ratto, the "biggest little" single entertainer to hit this section in a long time, pleased and delighted a large audience at the Clearfield High School Auditorium last evening. His stuff was "peppy," purposeful and packed a punch in every feature.

HENRY MORGENTHAU NEW AMBASSADOR TO OLD MEXICO

WASHINGTON, March 23.—President Wilson has chosen a new ambassador to Mexico and Henry Morgenthau, of New York is his appointee.

The announcement that the President had selected a new envoy was made at the White House today but there was no intimation as to the identity of the man. Mr. Morgenthau's name probably will be announced officially tomorrow, and will be sent to the senate for confirmation some time this week.

It is believed that the senate will not confirm the appointment of Mr. Morgenthau until the return to Washington of Senator Fall of New Mexico, chairman of the senate sub-committee which has been investigating the Mexican situation.

In case the appointment is confirmed by the senate, Mr. Morgenthau may be expected to depart for Mexico City, where he has more than a year the diplomatic duties of the American government have been handled through George Sumner, of the American embassy. Henry P. Fletcher, who resigned several weeks ago as American ambassador to Mexico, has not been in the Mexican capital since February, 1919. Mr. Fletcher gave up his post shortly after the arrest and confinement of W. O. Jenkins, American consular agent at Pueblo. Mr. Fletcher held that he could no longer remain in the diplomatic service while the President's Mexican policy was unchanged.

STATE ROAD RIGHT OF WAY RAPIDLY BEING SECURED

A. C. Lansberry, the Bigler business man, who, out of a spirit of progressive citizenship took upon himself the duty of securing the right of way for the new state road between Woodland and Elm Hill, at the request of the County Commissioners, was in town yesterday and stated that he was progressing finely in his work and would have his task completed in plenty of time for the beginning of construction as soon as the weather permitted.

Mr. Lansberry is of the opinion that the road should not only skirt the Albert hill but should follow the Pennsylvania railroad clear around to the crossing near the Woodland hotel and thus eliminate the hill just after you cross the railroad and the rough piece of road to the western trough at the foot of Albert's hill.

PETITION COURT TO CHANGE VOTING PLACE IN GIRARD TOWNSHIP

A petition filed at the Prothonotary's office yesterday morning contained the names of sixty electors of Girard township and asks the court to change the polling place in that township. At the present time the voting place for the township is located at the residence of Paul Smith on the Leconte's Mills-Odesa road. Not over twenty voters reside in close proximity thereto and the remainder of the electorate of the township is compelled to travel considerable distances in order to vote.

The petitioners ask that the polling place be located at Surveyor where 65 of the voters of the township reside with 60 more of the districts total of 250 living in the adjoining village of Bald Hill. This change would serve 94 per cent. of the voters to much better advantage than under the present plan. The petitioners also think it might be well to have two voting places in the township, but also puts that matter up to the court for decision. The petition is handled by Chase & Chase.

W. J. Lanich, one of Huston township's progressive Supervisors, attended the county convention at the Court House today.

BUY YOUR FORD CAR NOW

To make sure of getting a Ford car, buy one now. Don't wait until spring but buy now while deliveries are possible. Even next month is an uncertainty.

The number of Ford cars allotted to the territory is limited and specified. Even to get our allotment, we must have real, bona-fide orders for cars. Just so many cars allotted us; so many will get cars; will you be one of them? If you would be forehanded, get your name on an order today.

Don't think you cannot use it if you get it now. The four seasons are all alike to the Ford car. It is a necessity every month of the year. Besides, the Ford car is lowest in up-keep cost and easiest in operation. And the new Ford electric starting and lighting system makes driving more convenient. Have Same Speech.

The old Gaelic or Celtic languages of the people of Scotland and Ireland are still spoken in place of English in the south and west of Scotland, in parts of Wales and other places, but the great majority of the people of both Scotland and Ireland speak English. They have their variations of speech due to brogue or dialect, just as different sections of England and America have, but in all essentials their language is ours.

TAXES IN GERMANY HEAVY

Individuals Are Beginning to Feel That Country Really Suffered Defeat in the War.

The individual German has not begun to feel the peace terms, financially. During the war the Germans have been loading their money to the government. This year they have begun to give it.

There is an estate tax graduated as to size and as to relationship. It imposes the heaviest tax on the largest inheritance from the most distant relative.

A peculiar feature of this law, illustrating its severity, is a provision that in no case may the tax exceed the amount of the inheritance taxed. No mean cousin can leave "spite money" which would compel the recipient to pay more than he got, anyhow.

An income tax ranges to about 70 per cent as the income grows.

There is a profits tax and a heavy tax on wealth increases during the war—to get the profiteers—the usual taxes for revenue, heavier than ever, and a capital levy is being considered. With food, coal and clothing short, they are bound to add to the discontent. Agitators will make the most of the crisis.

But Germany has weathered two crises as serious: In the most difficult months just after the surrender a year ago; and the peace conference period, when she woke up, as loser, to the terms.

Sadly Incomplete.

A deed dated March 15, 1807, recently recorded on Long Island, conveys "the Valentine farm on the highway leading from Jamaica to Great Plains on the Jericho turnpike, thence to the highway leading from Little Plains to Rocky Hill, including the buildings, orchards, gardens, meadows, common, seedlings, trees, woods, paths, water and water courses," but gives no other description of the property or any indication of its size, and nobody knows what it is.

Getting an Early Start.

"Why won't you marry me?" "Because I don't love you." "Why need that matter? We'd simply have a five-year start on half the people in our set."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Owl Valuable to the Farm.
Do you know a monkeyface owl when you see one? Perhaps you know it as the barn owl. Anyhow, if you see one hanging around don't kill it. It's worth six or eight cats to you on the farm or suburban place, according to the state biologist of Washington.

Benefit in Wearing Glasses.
Wearing glasses does not weaken the eyes. This is a common mistake because the eye gives up straining and reveals the full necessity for glasses. Often eyes become so strained that the rest given that after a time the glasses are no longer needed.

A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE YOU.
NOTHING that we could say would so thoroughly convince you of the value of Chamberlain's Tablets as a personal trial. We can tell you of thousands who have been permanently cured of chronic constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache and disorders of the stomach and liver, but this will have little weight with you as compared to a personal trial. That always convinces.

The "rent hog" is everywhere present a withering blight on the prosperity of any community, taking all the joy out of living, and making life a hardship for many.

Mr. Hoover again declares that he does not desire to become a candidate for President. He has evidently inspected the vineyard and found it hanging full of "sour grapes."

Clearfield's loss is most assuredly Curwensville's gain in the person of Dr. John C. Collins to the Methodist church of that place. Dr. Collins has won a host of friends in Clearfield through his ability as a pastor, an orator and a substantial citizen. He has fit into the spiritual life of our sister city in an excellent manner and Curwensville people will find him a valuable asset to their citizenry.

Politicians will have a new factor to reckon with in the near future. Women in politics are certain to inject wholesome ideas into government. Already the women are taking a great deal of interest in politics and when the time comes that they are granted a voice in party affairs and local and state government they are going to shoulder their new responsibility just as they have shouldered other responsibilities in the past. The beautiful part of it is that they have always put through whatever project they got behind. Women in politics will be a force that will bring reforms so quick that results will be staggering.

The majority report filed by the Coal Commission makes allowances to mine workers which most certainly meet them more than half way in their demands and which are wholly acceptable to the rank and file of honest toilers who dig and place the black diamonds on the cars. The minority member of the Coal Commission had his hands tied—bound by the irrevocable demands made by Lewis, et al. He could not join in the recommendations of the other members of the commission—and save his face. The miners will hardly refuse to accept the report of the majority on the commission when the allowances made are so far reaching and the possibility of a summer tie-up looms large if an industrial battle must be fought.

IT IS DIFFERENT MR. McADOO

Mr. McAdoo out of the cabinet and relieved from the dictatorship of railroads, sees things in a different light. He no longer accedes to the system of war taxation of big business in times of peace, as his recent advice to Washington signifies. He criticizes the system of taxation as follows:

"The immediate burden of taxation is too great. It is having injurious effect on business. It is a contributing factor of large proportions in the high cost of living. Its inevitable tendency is to stifle new enterprise and to throttle initiative. It is both unscientific and inequitable. In view of the approaching decline in our export trade with the inevitable reduction in the volume of business in the country, it will become doubly important to revise and to reduce taxation in order that business may not have to carry an unnecessary tax burden throughout this period of readjustment.

Congress has been told the same story many times, even during Mr. McAdoo's term of office as secretary of the treasury, but the pressure continued and high prices prevailed, and will continue as long as the manufacturers are compelled to give up so much of their profits, and this means that the consumer pays the taxes in the high price of what he buys, but he pays them, nevertheless, whatever the price of commodities. The new congress is doing its best to lop off a billion from the estimates submitted.

Excess profits tax boosts prices and costs to the consumer, but they are also a leveler for the producer.

DON'T NEGLECT THE LITTLE ONE

A snuffling, sneezing, coughing child certainly is a reflection upon the parents. To permit a child to suffer from a cold is more than negligence; it is cruel. A cold that hangs on weakens the system and can easily turn into something serious. Mrs. J. S. Pison, 376 E. 158 St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I can't speak too highly of Foley's Honey and Tar. When my little girl has a cold I give her Foley's Honey and Tar and that stops her coughing in a little while. Children like it. It contains no opiates. Sold everywhere."

When Constance Talmadge comes to the Driggs theatre Wednesday in "Who Cares?" in which she is presented by Lewis J. Selznick, patrons of the screen will have the opportunity of seeing the best Constance Talmadge picture that has yet appeared.

She is seen in the role of Joan, young, happy and carefree, living alone with her grandparents, who have both forgotten the word "youth." In a house nearby lives Martin Grey, who has come down to his country house to grieve over the death of a dearly loved father.

Joan and Martin meet and for many wonderful days they laugh and play together. Then one day Joan is discovered and she is ordered never to see Martin again. This is the last straw. She runs away to Martin and asks him to take her to the home of her friend Alice Palgrave, in the city. When they reach the city Alice is not there, and Martin does not know what else to do but to marry Joan. She readily consents, thinking that the best way out of all her troubles.

She has adopted "Who Cares?" for her motto and not knowing the responsibilities of married life she decides to have one wonderful time. She forgets all about the man who has made it possible for her to have such a wonderful time and becomes fast friends with Gilbert Palgrave, Alice's husband. Palgrave is a scoundrel of the worst sort.

One night at an inn Palgrave threatens Joan with a revolver. She tells him Martin is the only man she loves and she is not afraid to die. Martin saves her and they both decide to settle down and be happy.

TESSA MODISTE

By NELL ADAIR.

(Copyright 1920 Western Newspaper Union)

She moved into the little brown house by the mill, with only an old woman for company. She was a girlish little creature, with brown questioning eyes, and a tan-shante cap pulled over her waving dark locks. She wore unusually short skirts of woolen stuff and a nobby jacket of many pockets, and tramped through the woods, whistling lustily when no one was near. She was at once the small town's enigma and annoyance. Annoying, in that she kept resolutely to herself, relieving in no way the natural curiosity, and an enigma, in that she constantly furnished surprises.

Old Doctor Worthington had finished telling of being called one night to attend the sick child of Italians in the town, and of finding the strange girl there relieving their distresses. Once the doctor's son, returning from the city, brought information that he had seen this same quiet brown-eyed girl in beautiful evening apparel, seated in a box at the theatre.

Cartersville disapproved of inconsistencies; it disapproved of mystery, so the inmate of the brown house was left to herself. Helen-Marie, an accepted town authority on social matters, shrugged disdainful shoulders. Later, when she met the girl, her whimsical face glowed as she walked at Jack Hamilton's side. Helen-Marie unreasonably resented her presence.

"Why did she come here?" she asked herself.

She questioned Jack contemptuously, concerning his new acquaintance.

Jack, who had been Helen-Marie's dominated property, flushed confusedly as he murmured his reply. He had come upon the girl on the long drive one day. It had been raining hard and he had offered to drive her home. The woman who lived with her was some sort of a relative, he explained. She called the girl "Tessa." Jack could tell no more.

Helen-Marie's resentment deepened as days passed and she found Jack enjoying more and more the strange girl's companionship. Sometimes she saw them seated on the cross bench on the bridge, smiling into each other's eyes; sometimes the two came swinging down the road from a long country walk. Helen-Marie bowed to Jack coldly. It was not his desertion alone which galled, but the humiliation of his preference. This girl! This unknown humble girl! Was Helen-Marie not the town's idol, their social leader, exhibited musician and authority on fashions? Was it not Jack Hamilton's aristocratic mother who had planned and encouraged their friendship? Who but Helen-Marie might be worthy of her son with his assured future?

The strange girl sat on the brown house veranda, when Helen-Marie passed, and then paused thoughtfully. The girl was sewing upon some lovely flimsy stuff. As Helen still hesitated, the girl held the material up with a shy smile.

"Pretty?" she asked.

"Very," Helen-Marie replied.

"You make your own clothes?"

The girl raised her brown eyes.

"I make—other people's," she answered slowly. "I am Tessa, modiste." So that was it. Helen-Marie went briskly up the walk. When dressmakers came to town, with herself rested always the decision of their capabilities. If, as usually happened, an anxious seamstress failed to find favor in her eyes, the seamstress might well prepare to seek other fields.

"I should like you to make a frock for me," said Helen.

Tessa considered, then she laughed softly.

"They tell me," she replied, "that Miss Helen-Marie Terry has always her own way. Therefore, I may as well agree."

Helen-Marie went on to see Jack's mother.

"Your son's new friend, the dressmaker, is sewing for me," she said.

When the white frock was finished, Helen-Marie regarded her own mirrored figure in a reluctant admiration.

"It is not," she said at last sharply, "at all as I should have wished. I am afraid that I will not be able to recommend you to my friends. However, —my bill?"

"There is no bill," little Tessa answered quietly. "When a garment fits to give satisfaction."

Helen-Marie placed a bill upon the table. It was a small recompense indeed. "That will at least pay for your time," she said and departed.

Jack's mother, descending from her automobile, met Helen-Marie at the brown house door.

"I must warn you," Helen instantly advised, "that the girl's work is impossible."

"I am coming," Mrs. Hamilton said slowly. "To make a friendly call at my son's request. He is going to marry—the girl—you see. It was love at first sight with them both, that day in the road. All Jack knew of her was the name she gave—Tessa Modiste."

"My dear! Can you conceive that this young creature is 'Theresa' of New York and London? You know of course, the significance of a 'Theresa' label. The girl does her own designing, and she came to this quiet place for a rest."

Mrs. Hamilton looked back over her shoulder.

"I am glad, Helen-Marie," she said, "that you never really cared."

Daily Thought.

"Is happy for him that his father was born before him—yell."

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

THE BRAVE FLOWERS.

"You're so brave, flowers," said the rainbow fairies. "Now and then we wonder how you can ever stay here and bloom and blossom."

"Oh, rainbow fairies," said the flowers, "we must stay here. We cannot leave it, or if we, ourselves, leave it, we must have our family come here in our places. Our cousins must come, our sisters and brothers, our little baby buds."

"You see, it is something too beautiful to leave. Can't you understand that, rainbow fairies?"

"Oh, yes, flowers, we can understand it," said the rainbow fairies, "for we wouldn't leave here for worlds. There are our relations who live in other parts of the world, who come out at times, but we're around all the time. Oh, such a glorious life as we do lead."

"Still," said the flowers, "you think that we might want to leave it, you think that a little bit."

"No," said the rainbow fairies, "we don't think that you would want to leave it perhaps, but we wonder how you can be so brave, so brave to hang on with all the rushing torrent of water."

Now the rainbow fairies and the flowers were talking. Others could never have heard them talking. They were speaking in the flower and rainbow language which is a beautiful language as you can imagine.

Beside them and over them and all about them was a great waterfall, in fact, several great waterfalls, as great as any in the world.

All the time there was a rainbow, several rainbows in fact; and you know, the rainbow fairies live in the rainbows. They live in them as we live in houses, and some live in the green part, some in the golden stripes and some in the red stripes.

There were many flowers around the rapids which were about the falls, and there was a great deal of lovely moss, and neither the flowers nor the moss seemed to mind the rushing water which ran so wildly past them and over them and about them.

But the flowers which were talking to the rainbow fairies were back of the falls, on the rocks and in the tiny crevices.

"People like to come down here, don't they?" asked the flowers.

"They're brave, too," said the rainbow fairies.

"Yes, they're brave, too," said the rainbow fairies.

"We can understand their bravery," said the flowers. "We know how they want to come down those many, many steps, and take this trip across these little bridges and go under the falls. That is, rainbow fairies, they go back of the falls. The falls are falling way over there in front, and in the great space between the falls and the rocks over which they dash people can go."

"It is when they're on that trip, when they're all dressed up in oaks, and when they're getting very wet from all the mist and water, then it is that they see us and, too, think that we're brave."

"But oh, rainbow fairies, could we help but stay and see this glory? Could we leave when all around us are so great and mighty dashing waters, and beautiful rainbows in which you live, which join together in great half circles and then bend down to kiss the sparkling water?"

"Could we leave all that, rainbow fairies? You are here always, always because here the mist and the sunshine are chatting most of the time. And we like to see you and to watch you smile in your glorious, brilliant way."

"They may think we're brave, they may! The people say as they pass us."

"Oh, how can those little white flowers stand all that rushing water over their heads? We should think they couldn't stick on."

"Yes, they may say that, but oh, who thinks about bravery when there is great, great beauty to be seen? We're so happy. We live in a world of the most marvelous and glorious beauty. We're friends of the great waterfalls, of the sunshine, of the sparkling jewels made by the two jewels, Sun and Water. We're not only brave flowers. We're lucky flowers!"

If You Want to Be Happy.
Did you ever know a suspicious, fault-finding person who seemed really happy? Of course there is only one answer to that question. No one can be happy who looks on the world through suspicious eyes and is all the time grumbling and finding fault. And since all of you are anxious to be happy, would it not be sensible to substitute for suspicion, trust, and for fault-finding, appreciation?—Girls' Companion.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and youthful with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, in proved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover when it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

—the perfect balance for laying hens. Hens fed grain alone make excess yolks, which cannot be laid. Hens fed the unaided yolks in the next fat hen you dress. Corn, oats, barley, wheat, etc., are yolk-forming and fattening feeds, and should be balanced with high protein ingredients to produce as many whites as yolks. Purina Chicken Chowder contains such white-forming ingredients as granulated meat, linseed meal, alfalfa flour, etc., that balance the grains in Purina Scratch Feed. COAL DUST LODGED IN MINER'S LUNGS

Tells how his cough was conquered and health restored.

"In November, 1916, I was working in a coal mine and the doctors said the coal dust had settled in my lungs. I couldn't sleep and my right side coughed so I couldn't sleep and had constant pain in my right lung and under my shoulder blades. I coughed so hard the blood would spurt out of my nose. Finally the doctors had me change climate and live outdoors, but didn't improve.

Then I came home and started on Mils Emulsion. Thank God, I did, as it did me a lot of good right from the start, loosening up the coal dust in my right lung. In a few weeks my lungs were free. I could sleep like a baby, had an excellent appetite and my cough left me entirely. I gained back 20 pounds in weight and went back to work in the mine completely restored to health."

G. H. Bunn, 14th Ave. & No. 15th St., Terra Haute, Ind.

Eat Less Meat

If Back Hurts

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

LAND QUESTION IN RUSSIA

Natural Desire of Peasants to Participate in Ownership of Soil They Will Be Root of the Revolution.

Article XVII

By FRANK COMERFORD.

In talking with people about Russia, I have discovered that most people in America have only a faint, uncertain, vague idea of the country. Czar Nicholas, the last of the self-proclaimed autocrats, was monarch of 8,660,000 square miles, one-sixth of the entire land surface of the earth. The great Russian empire is spread over part of two continents, Europe and Asia. It is almost entirely confined to the cold and temperate zones.

Three seas bound it on the north—White, Barents and Kara of the Arctic; the seas of Bering, Okhotsk and Japan of the northern Pacific bound it on the east. The Baltic sea, the gulfs of Bothnia and Finland limit it on the northwest; two sinuous lines of land front separate it respectively from Sweden and Norway on the northwest, and from Prussia, Austria and Roumania on the west. On the south and east the frontier has changed frequently, according to the expansion and contraction of the empire under the pressure of political exigency and expediency. The Black sea is the principal demarcating feature on the south of European Russia. On the west side of that sea the south frontier touches the Danube for some 120 miles; on the east side of the same sea it zigzags from the Black sea to the Caspian, utilizing the river Aras for part of the distance. As the Caspian is virtually a Russian sea, Persia may be said to form the next link in the southern boundary of the Russian empire, followed by Afghanistan. On the Pamirs, Russia has since 1885 been co-terminous with British India, but the boundary then swings away north round Chinese Turkestan, and the north side of Mongolia, and since 1905 it has skirted the north of Manchuria, being separated from it by the river Amur.

The total length of the frontier line of the Russian empire by land is 2,900 miles in Europe and nearly 10,000 miles in Asia, and by sea, over 11,000 miles in Europe and between 19,000 and 20,000 miles in Asia—a frontier of 68,000 miles.

Empire's Vast Population.

The population of the empire, according to the 1915 census, was estimated at 182,182,600. According to the same census this population was distributed as follows: In European Russia, 131,796,900; in Poland, 12,125,000; in Caucasus, 13,125,000; in Siberia, 12,337,800; in the central Asian provinces, 11,125,000; Finland, 3,125,000.

Over 80 per cent of the people of Russia are peasants. The land is their problem. It means home to them—work, life. Their one dream has been to own the land. Land ownership is their definition of freedom, their idea of happiness.

The Russian peasant has been a stranger in his own country. The man who tills the soil and lives on the land and yet never owns an acre of it is a foreigner, even though his forefathers may have been native to the country for centuries. The Russians have felt this; they are simple, home-loving people. From the conversations I have had with Russians of the peasant class I believe that they have suffered more because they never had a chance to own their own homes, their own farms, than from the denial to them of political freedom. The land question is a heart question, a heart question to them.

Crime in Land Distribution. Some idea of the land crime in Russia is told in the startling figures showing the actual distribution of arable land, forests and meadows in European Russia. The following table is only one count in the indictment:

	Acres	Percent
Arable land	301,437,000	25
Meadows and pastures	155,470,000	15
Forests	452,125,000	39
Uncultivated	226,273,000	19
	1,135,305,000	100

This land in European Russia was divided among the different classes of owners as follows:

	Acres	Percent
State and Imperial family	400,015,000	35
Peasants	446,537,000	39
Private owners, towns, etc.	245,525,000	21
Unit for cultivation	66,006,000	5
	1,158,083,000	100

The condition of the peasants prior to the revolution, according to official documents, appears to be as follows: "In the 12 central governments they grow, on the average, sufficient rye for bread for only 200 days in the year, often for only 180 and 100 days."

One-quarter of the people have received allotments of only 2.9 acres per male, one-half of them less than 8.5 to 11.4 acres—the normal size of the allotment necessary to feed and maintain a family being estimated at 25 to 42 acres. Therefore the peasants were compelled to rent land from the landlords at fabulous prices. The aggregate value of the redemption and land taxes often reached 185 to 250 per cent of the normal value of the allotment, not to speak of the taxes for recruiting, the churches, roads and local administration, chiefly levied from the peasants. The peasants have sunk deeper into debt every year. The scheme was a quicksand—the harder they worked and struggled the deeper into debt they fell. Increasing arrears have driven one-fifth of the inhabitants from their houses. Every year more than half the adult males (in some districts three-quarters of the men and one-third of the women) are forced to quit their homes and wander throughout Russia in search of work. In the governments of the black earth region the state of matters is hardly better.

The phrase "class distinction" was more than rhetoric in Russia—it was part of the chains. It handicapped destiny, booted the door of opportunity. The great mass of the people, 81.6 per cent peasants; 10 per cent made up the nobility; 9 per cent the clergy; 6.8 per cent the burghers and merchants; 6.1 per cent the military; thus 147,000,000 of the Russians were peasants.

The slavery in Russia consecrated by law in 1869 was partly abolished in 1881. The Act only pretended to liberate the serfs. Even under the best landlords conditions continued to be terrible. Household servants or dependents attached to the personal service of their masters were released. They joined the town proletariat. The peasants were given allotments of arable land. These allotments were not given to the individuals, they were given over to the rural commune called the Mir, which was made responsible as a whole for the payment of allotments. It was a sort of land communism, except that the title did not pass even to the Mirs. The enormous charge against the land made them tenant serfs. The Mir was a mortgaged community. The redemption charge was not calculated on the value of the land, but was considered as payment for the loss of the compulsory labor of the serfs. The enslavement of the peasant was recognized in the Act which pretended emancipation.

Peasants Systematically Cheated.

Many proprietors of land saw to it that the allotments did not give the peasants the needed pasture lands around their homes. This craftily calculated scheme compelled the peasants to rent pasture land from the landlords at any price. The landlords held them up.

It was only as late as 1904 that the landlord was forbidden by law to inflict corporal punishment on the peasant. Even this law was wicket at and the practice of treating human slaves as brutes tied tied domestic animals, continued. The peasant was a chattel and the cheapest farm fixture. There were plenty of peasants. Notwithstanding the barbaric life in Russia, the population continued to grow.

The peasants' only participation in government was in the assembly called the Mir. With its quaint customs, it is of immemorial antiquity. The assembly of the Mir consisted of all the peasant householders of the village. These elected a head man and collector of local taxes. It was the nearest Russian peasant ever got to freedom. It was a socialism of sorrows, a touch of local self government which gave no rights; it simply provided a means of co-operating in burden bearing.

HARD AT WORK IN BELGIUM

Coal Mining and Other Industries Are Being Rapidly Put on a Normal Basis.

The Belgian coal mines are now turning out about 80 per cent of the normal production. They supply nearly all the coal needed for the Belgian industries, while some 350,000 tons of coal a month are exported to France. Then the great glass industry of the country, which before the war gave work to many thousands, is rapidly regaining its former prosperity, and only quite recently the French Ministry of reconstruction gave an order to a single Belgian firm for 2,000,000 square meters of window panes to be utilized in the devastated regions. The result of all this is that whereas, at the time of the signing of the armistice the French franc was worth 1.10 or even 1.15 francs in Belgium, it is now worth 95 centimes. Belgium, moreover, is very far from confining her efforts to France. Great Britain is already a considerable importer of Belgian goods while the United States recently placed an order in Belgium for more than 300,000,000 francs' worth of glassware.

Large-Hearted Doughboys.

The children played a large part in the American army's Christmas in France. At the artillery camp at Mailly, for example, it was a top sergeant who said, ten days or so before the day:

"Say, fellows, these poor little village kids haven't had much Christmas in their lives, have they, now? What do you say we take up a collection and see what we can do?"

The idea took in a flash. And they did so well, giving as they always gave, with both hands, that the total sum was amazing.

"Why," some one hazarded, "I reckon we could hand those little shavers pretty near anything they want, with all this wad to spend."

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

Look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning. Flush from the system the previous day's waste, your fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of inconsumable material in the form of ashes so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material which is not eliminated, forms toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy blood in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste matter and toxins from the system. It cleanses and purifies the entire alimentary tract, before putting food into the stomach. Girls and women with sallow, sunken, spotted, pimples or pallid complexion also those who wake up with coated tongue, bad taste, nasty belches, others who are bothered with headachy, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phlegmatized hot water and limestone plan, and pronounced results in one or two weeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and refreshes the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone plan, purifies the internal system. It is much more important than any skin cream, because the skin pores are not so absorbent into the blood as the internal system. Women who desire to keep their beauty of face clear and bright, try this for a few days.
